

Marie Curie Fellowship in Fish Parasitology

A Marie Curie Host Fellowship is available at the Marine Zoology Unit (www.uv.es/cavanilles/zoomarin) of the Cavanilles Institute of Biodiversity and Evolutionary Biology. The Cavanilles Institute is a multidisciplinary research institute of the University of Valencia staffed by ca. 120 researchers and furnished with modern, purpose-built facilities for biodiversity and evolution studies.

The appointee will participate in the project Parasite Pathogens in New Species of Mediterranean Aquaculture: an Experimental Approach (MTKD-CT-2004-003175) within FP6. She/he will design and carry out research in life cycles and transmission of blood flukes and monogeneans infecting Mediterranean fish species at the Experimental Aquaculture Plant of the University of Valencia.

The position is offered for 2 years. Gross salary will be around EUR 41,600 pa.

We are looking for a highly motivated, entrepreneurial fellow with experience in experimental fish parasitology and other areas relevant to the project. Criteria for eligibility are in accordance with the Marie Curie Fellowship Scheme. Applicants should hold a doctorate or have over 4 years of full-time postgraduate research experience, and be nationals of an EU Member State or an Associated State or be permanent residents in the EU for at least the last 5 years¹.

Applications in triplicate must include a CV with list of publications, copies of up to 5 selected publications and the names and addresses of 2 referees.
